Hi there... yes, I’d like to order a cake...

Our Winner

You can’t beat free — Google takes the cake here.
Our Winner

MS Word removes the “what if” factor of relying on Google’s servers and lets you work without an internet connection.
An easy-to-use interface doesn't mean much if the tools you need aren't available. Choose Google if you need light word processing features.

Our Winner

Power users should stick with Word due to its rich features.
Google is the automatic save hero you never thought your docs needed.
Google gives you more file format compatibility.
But Word may be your go-to if you require PDF editing.

Here is a text that two people that I can show you how to changed.

My friend Laura Ripper, a fellow editor, and I are going to make some amendments to the txt and do a couple of comments, to show you what you need to do to make it all right.
Our Winner

Google Docs shines in collaborative mode with its universal access and real-time editing features.
Our Winner

Google Docs was made for working on-the-go.
MS Word doesn’t need as many add-ons because it’s bursting with features, but Google’s basic skeleton allows for total customization with add-ons you specifically choose.
